Plan a focused lesson

Level and alignment

Grade 6 • Delaware • Reading informational text; CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RI.6.6. Focus: Explain an author's purpose or viewpoint through wording and selected details.

What is included

One cover; one teacher guide; one mini-lesson with two explained models; 2 original text/reference section(s); 16 practice tasks on four pages; one four-task exit check; four answer-key pages covering all 20 tasks; two access/source/license pages. Student texts are original, not extracted from released tests.

Time and sequence

Two 30–40-minute sessions plus a 10–15-minute exit check; extended writing or speech rehearsal may take longer. Model first; use tasks 1–4 to check readiness; practice the remainder in short groups; give tasks 17–20 without the key.

Preparation

Print student pages separately from teacher pages. Provide pencils and extra paper; oral-response learners need an adult recorder. Review word meanings and prerequisite decoding or sentence skills. No paid app, novel, or external reading is required.

Student directions

Read the lesson and supplied text or reference. Attempt each task before viewing the key. Explain when asked. Use separate paper for full drafts or longer answers; the PDF is not a fillable form.

Learn the move

Purpose is what a writer seeks to do: explain, inform, persuade, or another goal. Viewpoint is the writer's position or outlook. Identify audience, word choice, and selection of details. A text can inform while also trying to persuade. These notices describe an invented community event; they are not real announcements.

Model 1 • “Bring a bowl; soup service begins at noon.” What is the main purpose?

Give practical instructions/information; concrete action and time cues support that reading.

Model 2 • “Join us—the neighborhood needs your ideas.” What adds persuasion?

Direct invitation and an appeal to the audience's contribution, not merely logistical information.

Try the task first. Then compare the reasoning, not just the final word.

A. Event notice (fictional)

The Maple Room will host a repair exchange on Saturday from 10 a.m. to noon. Volunteers will demonstrate button sewing and bicycle-tire patching on sample materials. Visitors may observe or practice on the samples. No electrical appliances will be repaired. A registration sheet at the front desk has space for twenty visitors. The room has a step-free entrance. Anyone who needs a different way to participate may contact the desk before Friday.

B. Organizer's invitation (fictional)

A missing button need not end a favorite shirt's story. Join our Saturday repair exchange and discover a skill you can use again. You do not need to arrive knowing how: volunteers will guide the practice. Our twenty places let us keep groups small enough for questions. Watch first if you prefer, then try a sample when you feel ready. Bring your curiosity, not a broken appliance. Let's make repair a shared neighborhood habit.

Practice • Read, reason, respond

Read the lesson and supplied text or reference. Attempt each task before viewing the key. Explain when asked. Use separate paper for full drafts or longer answers; the PDF is not a fillable form.

1. Who is a likely audience for both texts?

2. State A's main purpose and cite a detail.

3. State B's main purpose and cite wording.

4. What outlook toward repair does B convey?

Practice • Read, reason, respond

5. Why does A name activities and exclusions?

6. How does B address a beginner's hesitation?

7. Compare how each text presents twenty places.

8. What effect does "a shirt's story" have?

Practice • Read, reason, respond

Read the lesson and supplied text or reference. Attempt each task before viewing the key. Explain when asked. Use separate paper for full drafts or longer answers; the PDF is not a fillable form.

9. Is A entirely unrelated to participation? Explain.

10. Which notice gives an exact end time?

11. Which gives a reason to value the event beyond that day?

12. Does B prove repair always saves money?

Practice • Read, reason, respond

Read the lesson and supplied text or reference. Attempt each task before viewing the key. Explain when asked. Use separate paper for full drafts or longer answers; the PDF is not a fillable form.

13. How does direct address “you” affect B?

14. Identify a detail in A that may help someone plan access.

15. Rewrite one line from B in a neutral informational style.

16. Write a three-sentence comparison of purposes using one detail from each.

Exit check • Apply the skill

Try without the answer key. Show evidence or reasoning when asked. Use separate paper for longer responses.

17. A new line says: “Don’t miss your chance to become part of the solution.” Is it neutral?

18. Write a neutral version of that line.

19. Could A and B share facts but differ in purpose? Explain.

20. Which two textual features would you examine in a new notice? Why?

Answers and response criteria

1. Potential community visitors, including beginners.
2. Inform/guide attendance; dates, times, activities, limits, registration.
3. Persuade people to attend and value repair; “Join,” “discover,” shared habit.
4. Positive and encouraging; treats repair as reusable skill and community habit.
5. Helps visitors understand scope and avoid bringing unsuitable items.

Accept equivalent correct answers and well-supported interpretations. Sample writing is guidance, not a required script.

Answers and response criteria

6. Says no prior knowledge needed and volunteers guide practice; allows watching first.
7. A factual capacity/registration; B frames small groups as useful for questions.
8. Personifies/figuratively gives emotional value to keeping a shirt rather than replacing it.
9. No. Its information makes participation possible; dominant purpose is logistical guidance.
10. A: noon.

Accept equivalent correct answers and well-supported interpretations. Sample writing is guidance, not a required script.

Answers and response criteria

- 11. B: skills reusable later and a shared neighborhood habit.
- 12. No. It makes no measured cost comparison and does not establish an always claim.
- 13. Invites reader personally and lowers distance, supporting persuasion.
- 14. Step-free entrance or contacting desk for another participation method.
- 15. Example: Volunteers will guide visitors using sample materials. Removes invitation/evaluative language.

Accept equivalent correct answers and well-supported interpretations. Sample writing is guidance, not a required script.

Answers and response criteria

16. Require A logistical focus, B persuasive focus, two accurate details, and explanation rather than labels alone.

17. No; urgency and valued identity are persuasive.

18. Example: Registration is available at the front desk. No pressure or unsupported promise.

19. Yes. The same capacity/activity details can inform or be framed as reasons to attend.

20. Audience/direct address, selected details, evaluative words, calls to action. Any two with how they reveal purpose/viewpoint.

Accept equivalent correct answers and well-supported interpretations. Sample writing is guidance, not a required script.

Access and next teaching steps

AIG

Ask for a counterexample, an alternative supported interpretation, or a newly written item with an explanation. Add depth rather than speed.

504

Follow the individual plan: breaks, enlarged print, extra time, reduced copying, or an alternative response method as documented. These are classroom options, not a statement of permitted test accommodations.

EC

Follow the IEP; show one task at a time, model the first decision, and permit dictated reasoning when appropriate. For decoding practice, distinguish an adult-read direction from an adult-read target word.

ESL

Preview task verbs and key vocabulary, allow home-language planning, and offer “My answer is ___ because ___.” Evaluate the targeted skill separately from unrelated language errors. For French, retain the target French sentence while explaining directions in a familiar language.

Use the exit evidence

For each exit task, record 2 = accurate and complete for the stated prompt; 1 = partly accurate or missing a requested explanation; 0 = not yet demonstrated. Total 0–8 is a local teaching note, not a standardized score. For oral tasks do not penalize spelling or handwriting. Revisit the exact type of error rather than assigning a diagnostic label.

Next lesson: model one missed decision, let the learner try a new example, and compare the explanation. Extend only after the learner can explain the targeted skill.

Alignment, sources, and license

The objective is original wording describing a focused part of the cited standard; this is not a full curriculum or official practice test.
